Winner – Competition, Italy

Gennaro d'Andria is the chief executive of DANDRIA Studio Legale in Rome. His area of practice has been steadily expanding from antitrust and EU law to cover a broad range of commercial issues. He has been involved in major antitrust investigations, including an Italian cosmetics cartel, a credit card fee enquiry in the air transport sector and the merger investigations into Alitalia's acquisitions of Air One and Windjet.

Mr d'Andria has also taken the lead on the firm's main transactional and contentious matters, such as the divestiture of a steel mill, the restructuring of the Italian subsidiary of a foreign high-tech conglomerate and a €40 million dispute relating to certain industrial supplies of electricity.

In 2011 Mr d'Andria launched an innovative client extranet designed to allow real-time access to matter-related information, such as deadlines, appointments, documents, billings and even real-time timesheets.

Mr d'Andria is a member of the Italian Bar and is admitted to the high courts.

Mr d'Andria obtained an LLM from King's College, London and previously practised with some of the leading law firms in Italy and abroad. In 2004 he trained at the Competition Directorate of the European Commission in Brussels.

What clients said

“Mr d'Andria deserves our gratitude, trust and respect for his outstanding way of approaching legal counselling, with particular reference to the quality and promptness of his legal advice, hands-on knowledge of the dynamics of our business and, not least, value for money of his deliverables.”

“His honest and upfront assessment of likely legal fees allows businesses to plan spend accordingly.”

“He is highly responsive and gets to the nub of the problem quickly.”

“In coming to a conclusion, he will consider the interests of the company, the risks, the impact and the consequences of such a course of action in a well-balanced way.”
